

Ayuntamiento de Madrid

LAW NOTICES.—(This Day.)

COURT OF CHANCERY, LINCOLN'S-INN.—At half-past 10.
(Before the LORDS JUSTICES).
Appeals, &c.—Whitley v. Lowe—Allan v. Ruyssemaers, part heard—Thimmore v. Lane.

ROLLS COURT, CHANCERY-LANE.—At 10.
For Judgment.—White v. Wakley—Holmes v. Holmes.
Causes, &c.—Hewston v. Gell, part heard—Wild v. Woodrich—Gul-

[illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible][illegible]

dundant and dishonest. We are sure that the more stringent the practice with regard to entering marks the better it will be for the trade, and the more they will be able to guard and to pirate the marks of Sheffield manufacturers; and the more eminent of the latter have no need to strike terror into the hearts of the former. We are, however, very much gratified to see that the latter are now so much encouraged to sell the articles to which they are given, that the credit which is due to Sheffield is affixed to the names of the makers, and the latter are able to attract customers. We find upon knives, for instance, the names of parties in London, Liverpool, and 50 other towns of the county of Yorkshire, and the names of the Sheffield makers are not only not obliterated, but are placed in the most prominent as well as it ought to be; and we have a different result from what we have seen in the case of the makers of Sheffield, and henceforward be adopted by all, as it now is by the principal makers of the county.

WILK FROM VICTORIA.—Hopes, it appears, are entertained of a new branch of export of a rather novel nature, for it is stated that a native variety of the silk-moth is reared in the mountains of this colony, clinging in countless swarms to the shrub which it inhabits, and which is enclosed in a dark-coloured cocoon, the exterior of which is of extraordinary toughness, and encloses a quantity of fine white silk.

ness and length, has been pronounced by a manufacturing house in Glasgow, by whom it was tested, superior to any other silk in the world. The specimens of the silk were forwarded some time back to the Melbourne Chamber of Commerce, who, while acknowledging the quality, and the fact that it was superior to the ordinary silk, were not prepared to attach to it the importance. However, as we believe it to be one of our prospects, and as we are anxious to see it put to the test, we think it important to the colony, we hope the discovery will prove that consideration of its intrinsic merits deserve it. It is a fact that there is a large quantity of cocoons that may be gathered in a favourable locality. A box as large as a small tea-chest was filled with them, and it was found that in the space of 24 hours devoted to the work of collection would afford the yield 2lb. of raw silk. If this opinion be borne out, it will be found that the labour of gathering is very remunerative, for the present price of the material is 1s. per lb. Mr. Whyte has gathered some cocoons, and has been successful in rearing the silkworms, and with the silk manufacturing trade. — Australian and

Zealand Gazette.

