men expressed in making some careful examinations of the Capano or Capano brandy, which is sold in bottles under the name of Messrs. Gilbey, 37, Oxford-street. We are thus enabled to correct some very erroneous impressions which have got abroad in respect to this brandy, and to state that it is a pure and genuine article, and they are used for adulteration. This is by no means the case, except in so far as it is used for adulteration, and we are glad to hear that they have proven this wine to be quite genuine and wholesome, while the adulteration of it is a crime, and is punishable by law. It is the opinion of the Medical Times and Dr. Lushington and Dr. Henshaw
