TO THE EDITOR OF THE TIMES.

Sir,—Referring to the letter signed "A. H. M.," in your paper of the 15th inst., I beg, on behalf of the committee, to state that it is entirely untrue that, in consequence of the disorganization which has taken place among the scholars, consequent upon a want of harmony among the masters and matron, the committee, after a lengthened and patient investigation, saw no alternative but to call upon all the scholars to resign their places. It is true that at more stringent or efficacious means could be adopted? The present master has a very onerous and difficult duty to perform, consequent upon the provision of an admitted disorganization, but he has been gradually reuniting the scholars to their original positions, and has been gradually reuniting its original position, and that now, with very few exceptions, the entire school is in a state of satisfactory discipline.

As to the motives which induced the boys on the present occasion to run away, I may mention that on Monday, the 6th of September, in the absence of the head master (who was in London on school business), six of the junior boys left the school, and were discovered at a sweet and cake shop some distance from the building, where they were expressly forbidden to go. On being questioned one or two of them said they had permission, which was untrue, and the fear of the probable punishment which would follow determined five out of the six to run away; but three only carried out this intention. They reached London and called at the house of a friend of one of them, who kindly took them in for the night, and brought them back to the institution by an early train in the morning. On their return the boy did not state that their reason for running away was an insufficiency of food, nor from the severity of the punishment usually employed in the school; and in reference to this it may be remarked that caning is less severe and less frequent than, perhaps, it should be. A record is kept of the names and offences of all boys who are caned, which is regularly submitted to the education committee at their monthly meetings; and I will here mention committee at their monthly meeting. The head master has distinctly stated that he has never punished boys before breakfast, and no child has ever been deprived of his regular food as a punishment for misconduct.

Brady, of Watford, who has frequently attended during the meal times, has complained of the boys being over-fed and in corroboration of this it was reported to a committee which met yesterday at Pinner that many of the boys frequently left meat unconsumed at their dinner, and bread and butter at their tea, and upon Mr. Brady's recommendation and approval, the following amended dietary has been in force for some time past:—

Breakfast.—Monday and Thursday, oatmeal porridge, with bread and butter and milk. All other mornings bread and butter and milk, or bread and milk.

Dinner.—Sunday, cold roast beef and potatoes, and plum pudding. Monday, hot roast legs of mutton, vegetables and bread. Tuesday, cold roast beef or mutton, potatoes, and plain pudding. Wednesday, hot boiled beef and potatoes. Thursday, cold boiled beef and potatoes.

carrots, parsnips, bread, etc. Thursday, 18 and potatoes, with plain pudding. Friday, hot roast le of mutton, cabbage, and bread. Saturday, soup, hash or cold meat, potatoes, with baked or boiled rice.
Supper.—Thursday, bread and cheese, with milk-an water. All other evenings bread and butter, with milk-an water. The milk in all cases new from the cow.
In cases of delicate and invalided children the doctor h full discretion to order beer, wine, or other nutritious and strengthening diet, as the case may require.

I will only add, in conclusion, my opinion that this noble institution is less likely to be ruined by defects in the internal arrangements than by the publication of such mischievous and erroneous statements as are contained in the letter of your anonymous correspondent "A. H. M."

I remain, Sir, your most obedient servant,

The time he again arrived for the directors to take account of the property to the proprietors, and to receive an account of the progress of the Company during the year ending 30th June 1836, and of its financial condition at that date.

As the Surplus Fund Account serves to indicate the occurrences of the year, an abstract of that account is first presented:—

From this statement it will be seen that three comparatively small insurance companies have merged into the Eagle during the year, that out of the assets transferred by them as hereinafter mentioned, they have together contributed $118,801 13a. 6d. to the company's plus fund.

Assets from new members is £15,725 14a. 3d. Last year

The income from new policies for the year ended June 30, 1937, amounted was $11,900 only. A portion of the increase, however, was from the issue of two or three large assurances, some of the risk under which it has been necessary to re-insure.

Deducting the sums to be immediately disbursed, the realized amount on the 30th June, 1937, were $1,296,313 13c. 10d., and since the interest received amounts as above shown to $57,313 16c. 7d., it follows that the Company's fund of that date, productive and unproductive, has been accumulating during the year at the rate of $4.8c. 6d. per centum. The total income is $242,823 7c. 5d., being $25,375 10c. 11d. more than the year's annual meeting. The total net

The claims are less by about $4,300 than they were in the foregoing year, notwithstanding that the amount at risk has latterly been larger than it was some eight months previously.

The expenses, it will be observed, are somewhat greater than were; the increase is mainly attributable to the needful enlargements of the Company's staff of employees.

The Auditor of the Company at the termination of the year has head	This document (the accuracy of which, as well as that of the going, has been duly certified by the auditors) exhibits an amount assets not such short of four millions, about one million still to be realized, and two millions and a-half in course of realization. The last report stated these assets at $1,479,122.10. The increase on the two is, therefore, $1,113,637 10c. 8d. The surplus fund, that is to say, the provision for future bonuses and expenses, amounts to $482,879 7s. 7d. These statements, it is to be observed, include nothing in connection with the Albion Assurance Company. The company, however, the satisfaction of reports of the amalgamation of that office is not yet completed, and that the addition of it will raise to Company's assets, realized and to be realized, to no sum than £5,123,643 4s. 9d., and its surplus fund (subject, of course, to a revaluation) to £611 11s. 11s. 3d.

The annual income of the Company, arising from these several combinations, is now about £365,000, or as nearly as may be £1,000,000.

Now, of this income about £80,000 arises from the premiums of participating assurances, the surplus in respect of which, together with certain other extraneous sources of profit, is sufficient not only to defray all the Company's expenses, but to meet the payments accruing the proprietors over and above the interest realized by their own Hence the assured of the participating class are placed in a satisfactory position as they can under any circumstances fairly expect. All their payments to the Company are carefully improved at a high rate of compound interest, and form a fund subject to no deductions whatever other than those arising from the satisfaction of the claims under their own policies.

Such is the position the Company has now attained. The Distinct feature that all who care to trace its progress of late years will find reason to be satisfied with it.

A CHILD KILLED BY A PLAYMATE.—An inquest was held at Bristol on Friday afternoon, on the body of William Henry Twitchings, aged five years and a-half, of a chairmaker, whose death, it was alleged, had been caused by a blow given by another boy named Tom. It appeared that on the 21st inst. the two boys were playing in a garden, and that Twitchings was struck on the head by a stone thrown by Tom. The jury returned a verdict of manslaughter, and recommended that the boy should be committed to the House of Correction for three months.

Clark, aged 10 years. It appeared as if on the Saturday the deceased, who was in good health, Clark sitting on a door step with a little girl named Thomas. The deceased attempted to pull the girl upon which Clark gave him a violent blow in the side, the little fellow went home crying, and complained to his mother of being in great pain. He was at length taken to the infirmary, where it was found that he had sustained a fracture of the ribs.

rupture and on Thursday afternoon an operation was performed for the purpose of replacing the intestine of the child, however, died under it. The coroner told me that although it was more than probable that death resulted from the blow given by Clark, yet they could charge a child so young with manslaughter. The jury turned a verdict of "Accidental death," and the coroner's inquest was desired to close. The parents of the child were not present.

MARLBOROUGH STREET—John Royston, 22, Broad-street, Bloomsbury, saddler's ironmonger, was brought before Mr. BEADLE, charged with receiving an immense quantity of property stolen from various saddlers at the west end of the town.

A Police-sergeant Crocker, C division, appeared that he went yesterday, accompanied by Police-constable Jay, to the prisoner's house, and asked him if he had bought any leather lately. The prisoner replied he had not, but that he had a large basketful of saddlers' stirrups, and showed them a large basketful of saddlers' stirrups. Crocker then looked about, and found a bundle of

After tied up in a wrapper, also a quantity of walking sticks, and a quantity of stirrup leathers. These goods had been identified. There were also about three wagonloads of saddlers' articles, of which the prisoner could give no account.

On the 25th of March, a George Dale, saddler, Rupert-street, identified a quantity of the property produced by the police as having been stolen from his employer's premises.

James George, Henry Jones, and John Elvage were charged by Crocker and Joy with attempting to pick pockets.

One of the prisoners a handsome mourning ring was found with this inscription—"Liddy Minnett, died 29th October, 1829, aged 65."

The prisoners were remanded, and the ring left in the custody of the police constables.

LANSWORTH.—Mr. Sophie Taylor, a lady residing the Limes, Lower Pooting, was summoned before Mr. INGHAM at the instance of Mr. Henry Anscombe, on behalf of the London and Brighton Railway Company, for unlawfully leaving a train at the Balham station while it was in motion.

The defendant denied the charge, and said she had been hurried that his wife was suffering from very serious injuries she had received by falling from the carriage, and was unable to attend. He pleaded "Not Guilty," and stated that he should be able to prove that the accident was caused by the negligence of the railway company.

Mr. EDWARD HILL, the stationmaster at the Balham station of the Crystal Palace Railway, deposed that on the evening of the 21st inst. he was on the platform when the train 6.50 from London-bright arrived. He testified that he saw her open the door, apparently for the purpose of alighting. He called out twice to her not to step out of the carriage until the train had stopped, but before she could answer him she had fallen. He testified that he assisted her up and found that she had severely injured her face. The witness added that the defendant's sister also jumped out while the train was in motion, but he happened to call out to her and she did not fall.

Mr. Taylor called his wife's two sisters to show that they were not riding in a first-class carriage, but in a second. They declared that the train stopped, and that one of them

Waver had had considerable time to get ready, and the defendant was anxious not to be carried on to Pimlico, one of the sisters opened the door, and as the defendant was getting out there was second motion of the train.

Mr. Hill then called his son to show that the trains at the Balham station were frequently moved after having been stopped.

Mr. Hill said the son was in the habit of jumping out of the trains while they were in motion, and he had cautioned him several times. On the next occasion he jumped out of him.

Mr. INGHAM was of opinion that the accident had arisen from the extreme carelessness of the passenger, and not from any fault on the part of the railway company.

Mr. J. H. B. was of opinion that the accident had arisen from the carelessness of a person who had not with so severe coast. She left Hartlepool on the morning of Wednesday 28th June 1888, bound for Orfordness. The weather being calm to Huntley, a fair wind thence to Flamborough Head, light variable winds across the deeps to Orfordness, and thence of increasing violence from the Orfordness, she finished four miles off the coast, cleaning at her anchor, and took up anchor at 11.15 time was 32 hours, which, considering that she has only single 10-horse engine to propel her three sections of 110 feet in length, may be deemed a very fair performance, and she was able to make 10 knots at her anchor. She was powered jointed steamers. As she rounded Orfordness she was fairly caught close on a lee-shore with a strong S.S.W. wind, and a very quick sea running against a spring tide.

time her position was one of peril, but her light draught and narrow displacement enabled her engine to force her against wind and sea off the lee-shore; and when she obtained sufficient offing she wore round, receiving the full shock of the wind, and was again driven on to the rocks, with the slightest injury, and returned to Lowestoft. As soon as the weather moderated she proceeded to London and delivered her coals aboard all the bridges at a wharf in the river. The company have been in the habit of employing her for some time, and are actively proceeding with arrangements for laying on a line of jointed screw colliers in the London coal trade, and have received approval to a large extent in Harlingpool. It is stated that the anticipated use by competent persons of the engine for the purpose of giving motion to a vessel, and the engine and crew section from one vessel to another, will both ends of the route, the facility of carrying an immense cargo and distributing it in sections to all waterside ports, and the facility of carrying the cargo from the coal ports of England at a cost for transit of only 2s. ton, which even at the present very low freights would leave a wide margin for handsome profits, and defy all railway competition. We trust that Newcastle will not have to wait for the arrival of the new line, but will avail itself of this bold and successful innovation in steam shipping.—Northern Daily Express.
