

A close-up, vertical view of the fore-edge of a book. The pages are aged and yellowed. The binding material, likely dark brown leather or cloth, is visible along the right edge. The spine area shows a lighter, textured material, possibly marbled paper or a different type of binding material.

