

A close-up photograph of a horizontal wooden beam, likely part of a roof structure. The wood is heavily weathered, showing significant decay, cracking, and loss of material. A metal bracket or support piece is visible on the left side, partially obscured by the damaged wood. The background is dark and indistinct.